general Writer

Golden, S. Emerson, Writer, Take to the Air, 47
Gordon, Bob, Tempo in Your Tales, 55
Guilty as Hell, But—, Julius Long, 81

Hamilton, Anne, For Verse Writers, 13, 78, 141, 206, 271, 333
Higgins, Helen Boyd, "Blind Leading the Blind," 117
Hill, Hinda Teague, Details Are Important, 37; Will Readers Like Your Characters?, 135; Notebook, Scrapbook and File, 198; What Do You Mean—Technique?, 261
Hintze, Naomi A., I Confess, 204
Holman, Ross L., Your Chance with the Big Shots, 244
How Are Your Facts?, William H. Easton, 173

I Can't Think Off Paper, Nancy Moore, 235
I Confess, Naomi A. Hintze, 204
Ideas Are Where You Find Them, McDonald White, 305
If Authors Were Salespeople, Roy J. Snell, 104
If You're Writing a Book for Children, Miriam E. Mason, 16
Importance of Self-Discovery, The, Alan Devoe, 41
Is Your Language Vivid?, Philip R. Jenkins, 148

Jenkins, Philip R., Is Your Language Vivid?, 148
Just What the Editor Wanted, Esther L. Schwartz, 51
Juveniles Gave Me My Break, The, Eunice Jones Stickland, 116

Kahm, Harold S., Don't Make This Error, 57; A Free-lance Writer's Mexico, 247.
Krey, Laura, Time and the Novel, 195

L'Amour, Louis, Short Story Materials, 297
Literary Structure, William H. Easton, 361
Long, Julius, Guilty as Hell, But—, 81
Lost Land, The (A Story), George H. Freitag, 172

Manuscript Market, The, 28, 60, 90, 121, 151, 183, 216, 249, 281, 313, 345, 375
Marple, A. C., Agent to Author and Vice Versa, 131
Marple, A. C. (with Zachary Gold), An Exchange of Letters, 327
Mason, F. Van Wyck, Thoughts for Would-be Professional Writers, 73
Mason, Miriam E., If You're Writing a Book for Children, 16
Mayer, Shirley J., So You Want to Crash the Syndicates, 363
Miller, Helen Topping, To Be Continued, 323
Moore, Nancy, I Can't Think Off Paper, 235; Pitfalls, for Beginners, 325
Mosier, Richard D., Motion Pictures for Story Backgrounds, 338
Mother Thought I Had Talent, Ada Marie Fairchild, 264
Motion Pictures for Story Backgrounds, Richard D. Mosier, 338
Munson, Miriam Ott, Writing Salable Greeting-card Verse, 22
My Experiences in an Ivory Tower, William Slater Brown, 237
My Friends, the Collaborators, Walter D. Edmonds, 7

Nicholas, Georgia C., Words that Weigh, 214
Norton, Mortimer, What Time?, 118
Notebook, Scrapbook and File, Hinda Teague Hill, 198

Oberfirst, Robert, Analysis of a "This Week" Short-short Story, 43; Analysis of a Pulp Magazine Short-short Story, 107
Once a Fledgling, Margaret E. Sangster, 201

Paine, Charles H., The Bottom Rung, 26
Patterson, Norma, A Book Gets Written, 259
Paul, Louis, Fiction as a Profession, 227
Pencil Sharpener, Julia Cooley Altrocchi, 341
Photography for Writers, Sigmund Sameth, 180
Pitfalls for Beginners, Nancy Moore, 325
Pitfalls of "Vertical Field" Writing, Lionel Finch, 308
Priddle, Bernece, Do It from Memory, 309
Prize Offers and Awards, 31, 64, 96, 128, 159, 190, 224, 256, 288, 319, 351, 381

Rauch, Mabel Thompson, Why Not Be Your Own Director?, 24
Rebentisch, Alice, Dresser Drawer Writers, 181
Roe, Wellington, Slanting Is for Hacks, 229
Room to Rent, A, George H. Freitag, 169
Runbeck, Margaret Lee, Decide That Never Again, 295

Sameth, Sigmund, Photographs for Writers, 180; Dollars from Gadgets, 339
Sangster, Margaret E., Once a Fledgling, 201
Schamban, Alexander, Copyrights and Copycats, 213
Schwartz, Esther L., Just What the Editor Wanted, 51
Shifting into High, Harper G. Brown, 239
Short-short Cut into Print, Thomas W. Duncan, 67
Short Story Materials, Louis L'Amour, 297
Significant Form, Stanley Vestal (Walter S. Campbell), 9
Slanting Is for Hacks, Wellington Roe, 229
Smallzried, Kathleen Ann, A Beginner's Notes, 110
Smith, Herbert E., Conscription and the Writer, 89
Snell, Roy J., If Authors Were Salespeople, 104
So You Want to Collaborate?, Elizabeth Chabot Forrest, 178
So You Want to Crash the Syndicates?, Shirley J. Mayer, 363
Spring, Howard, Beginnings, 35
Stickland, Eunice Jones, The Juveniles Gave Me My Break, 116
Story Germ, The, Bess Streeter Aldrich, 355

Talk About Dialogue, Zachary Gold, 102
Tempo in Your Tales, Bob Gorden, 55
There's Money in Mystery, Pauline Gale, 370
Thoughts for Would-be Professional Writers, F. Van Wyck Mason, 73
Thursday, Thomas, Crime Pays—Two Cents a Word, 138
Time and the Novel, Laura Krey, 195
To Be Continued, Helen Topping Miller, 323
Tunis, John R., The Writing Game, 357

Vestal, Stanley (Walter S. Campbell), Significant Form, 9; Writing Historical Fiction, 165
Vierhaus, A. B., The Beginning Writer's Most Profitable Hobby, 58

Washburn, Helen Peavy, Do You Make or Embroider?, 87
What Do You Mean—Technique?, Hinda Teague Hill, 261
What Time?, Mortimer Norton, 118
When Study Isn't Fun, Don't Study!, Catharine Barrett, 299
White, McDonald, Ideas Are Where You Find Them, 305
Why a Writers' Conference?, Herschel Brickell, 99
Why Not Be Your Own Director?, Mabel Thompson Rauch, 24
Will Readers Like Your Characters?, Hinda Teague Hill, 135
Wolseley, R. E., Writers: Quit Kidding Yourselves, 306
Words That Weigh, Georgia C. Nicholas, 214
Writer, Take to the Air, S. Emerson Golden, 47
Writer's Conception of Realism, A, Sherwood Anderson, 3
Writer's Library, The, See Book Reviews
Writers: Quit Kidding Yourselves, R. E. Wolseley, 306
Writing Game, The, John R. Tunis, 357
Writing Historical Fiction, Stanley Vestal (Walter S. Campbell), 165
Writing Is a Business, Alfred M. Cooper, 268
Writing Salable Greeting-card Verse, Miriam Ott Munson, 22
Writing Takes Three T's, Dorothy C. Dyer, 372

Your Chance with the Big Shots, Ross L. Holman, 244